

2019 Dermatologist of the Year

Lorraine L. Rosamilia, MD, a dermatologist in State College, was recognized as the 15th Annual Dermatologist of the Year by the Pennsylvania Academy of Dermatology and Dermatologic Surgery (PAD). The award was presented on September 20 at the PAD Annual Scientific Meeting at The Hotel Hershey, Hershey, Pennsylvania.

This honor pays tribute to a member dermatologist who has made significant contributions to the specialty of dermatology.

Dr. Rosamilia has served in various roles on the PAD Board of Directors since 2010, including as president, vice president, secretary, chair of the Scientific Meeting Committee, PAMED Specialty Leadership Cabinet representative and newsletter editor. In nominating her, PAD's President Scott J.M. Lim, DO, said, "I have worked first-hand with her and observed her genuine interests in the PAD via communications and her actions while we have overlapped our time on the Executive Board. Dr. Rosamilia has not only contributed a lot in different areas, but the "weighted" time and effort she has spent and the number of years she has contributed are commendable. Academically, she lectures extensively, nationally and internationally, and she was previously recognized as a young dermatologist of the year."

Dr. Rosamilia is a board-certified dermatologist specializing in medical dermatology with Geisinger Dermatology in State College. She attended The Pennsylvania State University, where she received her medical degree, and completed her dermatology residency at Milton S. Hershey Medical Center. Dr. Rosamilia is certified by the American Board of Dermatology.
